When the matter was brought to the attention of the Taotal by the Senior Consul, that official answered that he had been ordered by His Fr. callency the Superintendent of Northern Trade to prohibit the introduction of steam machinery, unless it was intended for the use of the cotton mills which are under official management. It is thus made evident that not only are plain rights will hereinefter be made denied to foreigners, but leagues. also that the prohibition for foreigners to import machinery implies, in a certain sense, the right of the Chinese to establish trade monopolies which, I venture to think your Highness and your Excellencies will readily admit, is in direct opposition to treaty stipulations. Steam machinery may be admitted for any company which is assumed to be under the protection of the imperial or local authorities but was engaged to be married to a youth in a cannot be admitted for the use of either private neighbouring village. 2nd August, 1893. Upon the 22nd July last, the Prince and Ministers had the Houser to receive a communieation from the Minister of the United States wherein, on bahalf of the Diplomatic Body, he brought to the Yamen's attention the notion of the Shanghai Taotai in probibiting the imports. tion of cotton-ginning machinery, which was regarded as extraordinary. The Minister of the United States requested that instructions be issued for the resolssion of the order complained

In reply the Yamen would observe that the right to manufacture native producte by foreigners at the treaty ports is not provided for by the treaties and from the beginning has never been permitted.

It would seem, therefore, that the statement in the communication under soknowledgement is made in a wrong sense, a misanderstanding. ' Again, the Minister of the United States states | H. Laud Investin't that the question "cannot strictly be said to be one applicable to the introduction of machinery to be used for manufacturing The object of the cotton gin is not to change or manufacture cot- Luzon Sugar ...... ton into cloth; it is simply to remove the seed liningfrom the cotton. It leaves the cotton as it found it except that it is cleaned of seed."

The Yamen would further observe that the importation of quachinery in question is for cotton-gioning purposes, but when the cotton is once cleaned of the seeds it can then be made into yarn or cloth. How can it be said, therefore. that the product is not changed? Therefore. China cannot but prohibit the importation of such machinery.

Reference is made in the communication under notice to the two characters Kung teo. in the various treaties meaning skilled manufacture Warson & Co., A. S. ing pursuits. With regard to these characters, the Prince and Ministers would observe that they refir to the employment of manual isbour and have no connection in the least with that which is irrelevant.
